In Case You Missed It: Last Friday's Social Hour - Adventure Bound Easy RV Rentals

Over 20 attendees enjoyed last week's Social Hour presentation by Adventure Bound Easy RV Rentals, located at the end of Valentine Street (across from Driftwood Market). It was a fun and interactive presentation, as attendees played "Peanut Butter and Jelly" with Peanut Butter remaining stationary and Jelly walking down the line, with everyone sharing their favorite RV locations. The most popular response was RVing to visit family members.

Michelle Ellsworth and her family started Adventure Bound Easy RV Rentals after buying an RV shortly before the pandemic. As they began their travels to the Grand Canyon, they soon started encountering shutdowns of services. Rather than risk driving through the desert without guarantees of water and other services, they turned around in Reno and visited Lake Tahoe and Sacramento. Unaware of California's near-complete shutdown, they walked around the state capital and drove their rig through a nearly-vacant San Francisco! When they returned to Oregon they began renting out their rig and, seeing success, bought several others and added consignments to their fleet. Each rig is named after television characters from shows they are watching, including everything from The Walking Dead to The Golden Girls!

Although Michelle Ellsworth works full-time as an addiction counselor, this had no impact on our wine consumption. She, her husband Wayne Ellsworth of Umpqua Heart, and their two children run Adventure Bound Easy RV Rentals as a family business. Learn more at adventureboundeasyrvrentals.com
