Emergency Prep This Week: Five Minutes to Leave
Brought to you by your Emergency Preparedness Committee

You have five minutes to leave. What will you take with you in addition to people and pets?

Think about what you would personally need, such as keys, medications, your phone, wallet, or go-bag.

Something to try:

Walk through what you would actually do. Anything that makes you hesitate may be worth addressing before an evacuation.

If your five-minute plan starts with “First, I need to find...,” we’ve already found something to work on.

We're ready! What are YOU bringing?

Thinking of Timber Valley From Montana

Submitted by Jeffrey Fenneran

My name is Jeffrey Fenneran (Lot 67). At this time, I am living in Montana, but I have seen on the news that there are a lot of fires in Oregon. I hope none are near Sutherlin and everyone is safe.

I will pray nothing comes near our home. Stay safe. I miss the area.

Noncommittee Signup Sheet

(For the heroically helpful, the gloriously uncommitted, and the proudly allergic to meetings)

Submitted by Dick Shanahan

At this year's annual meeting, Mike & Dick unleashed a revolutionary concept — a signup sheet for members who don't want to be on any committee but might be willing to help out occasionally, ideally during a rare cosmic alignment when free time, motivation, and caffeine all peak simultaneously.

The idea was met with shock, awe, and the kind of enthusiasm usually reserved for free donuts. We cobbled the sheet together with about five minutes left in the meeting — because nothing inspires productivity like a ticking clock and the promise of adjournment.

Despite the time crunch, several brave souls rushed forward to sign up, pens blazing, as if volunteering for light, occasional help were an Olympic sport. Many more would have joined in too, had we offered even one additional minute... or perhaps a marching band, dramatic spotlight, or a raffle for a year's supply of potato salad.

Nevertheless, the message was clear: People love helping — as long as it doesn't involve being trapped in a committee meeting.

The sheet is in the mail room & Office. Feel free to join, no meetings!

The Kitchen Will Be Closed
August 31 - September 7 (sooner if possible)
for Painting and Flooring Replacement
Submitted by Chris Beith

Thank you for your patience and cooperation.

We also need volunteers to help move the appliances and center tables out as well as cleaning and painting. Please come help us make our kitchen beautiful again.

Fire Season: Know the Levels and Restrictions
Brought to you by your Emergency Preparedness Committee

Fire season doesn't begin and end on the same dates every year. The Douglas Forest Protective Association (DFPA) declares the start and end of fire season based on current fire hazards and conditions. In 2026, fire season began May 30. In Douglas County, fire season typically continues into the fall, with DFPA announcing when fire season has officially ended.

During fire season, you'll see the fire danger level listed as LOW, MODERATE, HIGH or EXTREME. As conditions become hotter and drier, the danger of fires starting and spreading increases.

What About Restrictions?

DFPA also establishes Public Use Restrictions during fire season. These can change as conditions change. Restrictions may increase during hot, dry weather and decrease after rain or when conditions improve.

Depending on the current restriction level, certain outdoor activities that could create heat or sparks may be limited or prohibited. DFPA also has restrictions on operating motor vehicles where flammable vegetation could come in contact with the vehicle.

You can check the current DFPA Fire Danger Level and Public Use Restrictions by clicking the Fire Danger Rating icon on the Timber Valley website or directly at dfpa.net

Fire Danger Rating – HIGH

 DID YOU KNOW?

Many emergency alerts are location-based. When you travel, an alert you receive may be for where you are now, not where you live. Check the alert carefully to see which area it covers.
